

A Long Time Coming
© 2005 Matthieu Brandt

It's been a long time coming
The end is finally here
And again it's me
The cause of all your tears

It's not that I don't love you
But I'm not who I used to be
That little boy became a man
As restless as the sea

A simple life's not what I crave
a family, a career
I have to find what's out there
And see my chances clear

It's killing me to go
But it'll kill me if I stay
It just pains me so to hurt you this way

Won't be the father of your children
Can't take the path of least resistance
You'll find someone who's true
Someone to take you the distance

As I turn around one final time
And whisper my last goodbye
I look into your sad brown eyes
And ask you for forgiveness

It's killing me to go
But it'll kill me if I stay
It just pains me so to hurt you this way