

Kafka Is A Bitch

© 2024 Matthieu Brandt

It starts off with a letter you done something wrong It's only a small fine nothing can be done

You choose to pay the fine it goes missing in the mail Return address unknown there's no way this could fail the fines keep piling up there's money to be made before you even know it your house is up for sale

Foreclosure is not the end the IRS wiggles its tail cause you broke the rules, you see they haul you off to jail

You can't afford a lawyer
They give you one for free He's absent at your trial Because he's too way too busy

To beat this thing, fill out a form so you can be released Gotta pick it up in person
Two blocks down the street

Your family won't help you Cause you put them all to shame Although you played by all their rules
You didn't get their game

The goal is not the money they can legally steal from you The system is to keep you small then hide the ugly truth

The fear will keep you guessing
And stagnant in your place
As they divide the world between them
You can only wait

For a handout or a crumb
A sign of fairness to be had Waiting for Godot
You will simply end up mad

The moral to this story Don't antagonize the rich
There is no happy end Cause Kafka's is a bitch
