

When You Breath You Lie
© 2005 Matthieu Brandt

After twenty years of dope
Still haven't got a clue
Shootin', drinkin', snorting coke
No one can get through to you

You're in and out of jail
sold your body on the street
Feeling sorry for yourself
Life's great defeat

You put children on this world
That were addicted from the start
You never planned to love them
And thought that was kinda smart

You steal, cheat and break your promise
Betray your family
And when you're feeling down and out
You ask me for my sympathy

Life ain't easy
But you never even tried
The price was just too high
When you breath, you lie

Drove a stolen car without a license
Almost killed someone
Had your mom pick up the pieces
The trouble has just begun

I don't think I know you
You're just some stranger and a junky
Love will fall on barren ground
That's how deep you've sunk

Life ain't easy
Don't you think I feel the same
Old junkies don't survive
When you breath, you lie

How did you lose your way so long ago

You ran off the track, now no one will know
'Cause there's no turning back
Now that we all are wise
To all of your lies

You ask me for some dough
To pay for your next fix
Who do you think your talking to
I'm not your pimp, won't get you kicks

Well, I don't have no answers to life's persistent mysteries
All I know is that you screwed up
And live a life of misery

Life ain't easy
It's in the way you deal
You just wanna get high

Life ain't easy
But Don't think that I won't cry
When you leave us all behind
And say your last goodbye

When you breath you lie
